"MIRACLES OF THE JUNGLE"

SYNOPSIS Episode #11. "Twelve against one".

JUN 21 1921

M. Reilly

Bob Hathaway and Zeda his guide and companion are awakened in the dead of night by Nikko, Zeda's pet monkey, whose excitement is caused by the fact that Red Fox has released a group of hungry tigers who are creeping upon them. Bob and Zeda stand off the tigers for a time with Bob's revolver and then Helen Madison who is awakened by the noise, opens a window in her room and shelters them from the hungry beasts.

Como Brent, the leader of a band of cut-throats and slave dealers, makes one of his periodical raids on the Village of Markees Shad. Brent has poor success, however, as the only capture he makes is that of Red Fox. The tigers that Red Fox had turned loose, driving away the bandits. Red Fox, seeing Brent's hatred of Markees Shad, slyly works his way into the bandit's good graces and the two join forces, and evolve a plot.

Part of the plan consists of Red Fox returning to Shad's village, which he does, entering without being observed or anyone ever being aware of his short absence. Feigning illness, he is left unguarded while Shad goes on one of his daily hunting trips and secures a leopard in a trap.

The following night Brent's band approach the village under cover of darkness. Red Fox prepares for the climax of his revenge. First he forces Helen at the point of a pistol to leave the village and turns her over to Brent. He then opens the main gate but before the raiders can enter Zeda has awakened and thrusting his mighty arms through the bolt staples, holds the door against the invaders. Bob Hathaway springs upon Red Fox and after a terrific fight, subdues him. Zeda is weakening under the terrific strain of twelve men against him and it is but a matter of moments before he must give way and leave the sleeping village at the mercy of Brent's villainous cut-throats.
